WEST COAST BUSINESS OF MEXICO GROWING

Miners and Farmers Succeed Hostile Indians; Railroad Brings Civilization.

Navajo, Son., Mex., May 16.—R. H. Ingram, general manager, J. G. Lindsay, superintendent, and other officials of the Southern Pacific Railway company passed through Navajo on their way from Alamos, where they inspected the new freight and passenger depot. They considered the contemplated extension of the line from Alamos into the rich mining region in western Chihuahua and eastern Sonora. This extension would tap the great forests in this section.

Business along the west coast is increasing rapidly, as a great deal of American capital is being invested in Sonora and Sinaloa, and old mines that have been dormant for many years are starting up again. In a few months the stamp mills will again be grinding out the gold. Rude miners' cabins in the great forests where the sound of the ax had never penetrated, and for centuries only the tread of moccasined feet have broken the silence, are now common; where only a few short years ago savages fought bloody battles, today the hardy prospector with his burro wends his way through the cool canyons in search of the golden sand.

In the beautiful valleys, only recently the homes of hostile tribes, today what the green fields of grain, and far away on the horizon rises the black clouds of smoke from the great Southern Pacific engines. The railroad is here and before it have vanished the old ways.

JURY ACQUITS BACA OF MURDER AT HILLSBORO

Alleged Woman Confederate Terms in Penitentiary.

Hillsboro, N. M., May 16.—Francisco Baca, charged with complicity in the murder of Manuel Madrid, was acquitted by the jury. The chief witnesses against Baca, were Alma Lyons, a negro, 15 years of age, and the wife of the deceased Valentina Madrid, who is 21 years old—both of whom are life term convicts.

Valentina Madrid's story on the witness stand was the third confession she gave of having put powder down Baca in a dish of beans for her husband to eat and then on Baca in a cup of coffee given him to drink, the amount contained therein being the cause of his death. She admitted Baca, but shed no tears during her testimony.

When asked if she wished Baca hung or sent to the penitentiary she stated: "No, but it is not right that he should be free who has killed a man and her self, and suffering and have to stay in the penitentiary."

GROWING OF SILK WORMS A FAILURE

Mulberry Leaves Fed to Them at Chihuahua Kills Them.

Chihuahua, Mexico, May 16.—The experiment made here by the state government in trying to raise silk worms and to see what might be done in developing the silk industry, has proved a failure the first effort. The cause of the failure was that the worms would not eat the leaves of the mulberry trees grown in the city here and when they did eat caused them to sicken and die.

The experiment was in charge of L. D. Combe, of this city, who has had the experience in Italy. He states that the climatic and other conditions here were ideal for his experiment; that the leaves of the mulberry trees fed to the worms had every appearance of being all right and that he cannot account for the failure of the worms to do well on them unless there was some deleterious substance in the soil where the trees grow. The mulberry grows well here.
